Hagin, Kenneth E.
The Art of Prayer

29. Reviving the Art

Hagin argues the art of prayer and intercession has nearly vanished from the Church and must be revived for God to work. He illustrates it with the story of Mother Howard, a hidden prayer warrior.

Key takeaways

- Prayer as a serious discipline has faded across generations of Pentecostals and Charismatics and needs to be resurrected.
- Mother Howard, an elderly widow, prayed many hours daily and prayed a Full Gospel church into every town across North Texas.
- The unseen work of prayer is what truly gets the job done; Jesus will honor the hidden intercessor above the visible builders.

Passages worth keeping

> "She makes a business of prayer."

Captures prayer treated as a daily vocation, not a feeling.
